Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity exercise program on the physical fitness of older adults. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 older adults (mean age = 70.5 years) who were randomly assigned to either an exercise group or a control group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity exercise program. The control group did not exercise. The physical fitness of the subjects was measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness than the control group at the end of the 12-week period. The exercise program had a positive effect on the physical fitness of older adults.

A SERVICE

Right now, the only way to get the best of the world's best is to get the best.

For 13 years, the U.S. Navy has been the best of the world's best. The U.S. Navy is the best of the world's best.
